DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 1. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.
- 2. Claims 1-2 and 5-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over JP 6346014 in view of Shay et al. (U.S. 5,478,602), JP 54138732 and Lin (U.S. 5,281,261).

The rejection is adequately set forth in paragraph 3 of the office action mailed 12/4/02, Paper No. 25.

Response to Arguments

- 3. Applicant's arguments regarding JP 08073787 have been considered but they are moot in view of the discontinuation of this reference against the present claims.
- 4. Applicant arguments filed 3/4/03 have been fully considered but, with the exception of arguments relating to JP 08073787, they are not persuasive.

Specifically, applicant argues that there is no motivation to combine JP 6346014 with JP 54138732 given that the solution of JP 54138732 is acidic and there is no hint or suggestion that the graft polymerization step of the polymer onto the pigment will occur or be stable in alkaline medium so that there is no motivation to combine JP 54138732 with ink containing thickener that is associative and swells in alkaline medium.

JP 6346014 disclose water based ink composition for ball-point pens which comprises pigment, polar solvent comprising water and other solvent (such as ethylene glycol), pH controlling agent, and 0.01-10% thickener which swells in an alkaline medium resulting in an increase in viscosity of the ink. However, there is no disclosure of pigment surface treated with a polymer and surfactant as presently claimed.

JP 54138732 discloses pigment surface treated with a resin and surfactant. While it is agreed that application examples 1 and 2 of JP 54138732 disclose producing the pigment in acidic medium, it is noted that application example 3 does in fact disclose producing the pigment in an alkaline solution by adding sodium hydroxide solution and adjusting the pH to 7.5.

Further, it is noted that there is no requirement in the present claims regarding how the pigment is subjected to surface treatment with polymer and surfactant. The claims only require that the pigment is subjected to surface treatment not that such treatment occur in an alkaline medium.

Applicants also argue that there is no disclosure in JP 54138732 of pigment surface treated with both polymer and surfactant. However, it is noted that while JP 5413872 does disclose graft polymerizing polymer onto pigment, the reference also discloses mixing such treated pigment with surfactant (see application examples). It is clear that mixing the treated pigment with surfactant will result in pigment treated with both polymer and surfactant as presently claimed.

Evidence to support this position is found in Lin which discloses grafting polymer onto pigment followed by mixing this treated pigment with surfactant. Lin discloses that the surfactants coat or adsorb onto the surfaces of the present particles not occupied by polymer. Similarly, given that page 2, lines 13-15 of JP 5413872 disclose that the polymer is grafted to only some of the pigment surface and given that after graft polymerizing the polymer onto the pigment, the pigment is mixed with surfactant, it is clear that the surfactant will adsorb to the non-treated areas of the pigment (as disclosed by Lin) and produce pigment treated with polymer and surfactant as presently claimed. Although in Lin, the surfactant is adsorbed onto the pigment to create electrically charged species, this is just the end result of the specific situation disclosed by Lin. The significance of Lin is its' teaching that mixing polymer grafted pigment with surfactant will result in the pigment adsorbing onto non-treated areas of the pigment. In light of this teaching, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art that mixing polymer grafted pigment with surfactant in JP 5413872 will also result in surfactant adsorbing onto the non-treated areas of the pigment and thus producing pigment surface treated with both polymer and surfactant as presently claimed.

Applicants also argue that there is no disclosure of thickener in JP 5413872. However, note that JP 5413872 is used as teaching reference, and therefore, it is not necessary for this secondary reference to contain all the features of the presently claimed invention, In re Nievelt, Rather this reference teaches a certain concept, namely the use of specific surface treated pigments in inks, and in combination with the primary reference, discloses the presently claimed invention.

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
